FIFTY-FOURTH REPORT

OF THE

CHIEF INSPECTOR

OF

REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS
IN IRELAND.

TO THE

RIGHT HON. HENRY EDWARD DUKE, P.C., M.P.,
CHIEF SECRETARY TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND

OFFICE OF CHIEF INSPECTOR OF REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS,

DUBLIN CASTLE,

1st December, 1916.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit to you the Annual Report on the Reformatory and Industrial Schools for the year ending 31st December, 1915.

Owing to economical reasons the detailed information usually given with regard to each school has been omitted this year.

The total number of Schools under inspection on the last day of the year 1915 was 5 Reformatories and 66 Industrial Schools. Included in this list are eight Schools for young boys where they remain until they attain the age of 10 years, when they are transferred to Senior Schools.

During the past year each of the Schools was formally inspected and examined, and, in addition, visits were paid at intervals by the Inspectors without notice. On an average each School was visited three or four times during the year, and oftener in some instances when it was considered necessary.

The number of committals to the boys' and girls' Reformatories has increased during the year, and is in excess of the number committed during the previous two years. There was one transfer of a girl under Section 69 of the Children Act, 1908, from an Industrial School to a Reformatory during the year. One boy was admitted on transfer from a Reformatory in Great Britain, and five boys were committed to Reformatories from Industrial Schools.

The number of vacancies in a great many of the girls' Industrial Schools has been increasing during the past year, and in a considerable number of the boys' schools the number of vacancies has also continued to increase.

It will be noted, as stated above, that the admissions to Reformatory Schools upon conviction have increased during the year 1915; in the boys' schools there has been an increase of 41, and in the girls' schools there has been an increase of 2, as compared with 1914. In a previous report attention was drawn to the fact that juvenile offenders were often only committed when they had appeared several times before a court, and when, unfortunately, they had become fit cases for committal to a Reformatory.

During the past year there was a total of 187 youthful offenders (166 boys and 21 girls) committed to Reformatory Schools. According to the table of Previous Convictions on page 10 it will be seen that 83 male juvenile offenders were previously convicted on one or two occasions, 14 were previously convicted on three or four occasions, and 3 had been before the courts from five to ten times before being committed.

I am glad to be able to state that the scheme that was inaugurated last year for establishing a section in Domestic Science and Economy to be voluntarily attended for the term of a year by girls who had reached the age of 16 years and whose time had expired in the Industrial Schools has thus far proved to be satisfactory. Four schools were selected for the introduction of the scheme, viz., the Industrial Schools at Bray, Loughrea, Monaghan, and Wexford. The managers of all these schools testify to the improvement observable in the deportment and general character of the girls and their anxiety to fully avail themselves of the extended period of training in Domestic Science. The extra year's instruction, they state, has been a decided advantage, and several of the girls have obtained good class situations.

The health of the inmates in both the Reformatory and Industrial Schools has on the whole been satisfactory during the past year; the schools were remarkably free from diseases of a zymotic character: there has been, however, an increase in the rate of mortality; this is attributable to the increase in the number of cases of Pulmonary Tuberculosis and Diseases of the Chest. Many of the children when committed to the schools are in a very delicate state of health—ill-nourished, emaciated, and scantily clad; they are too often the victims of exposure and parental neglect.

There were 1,014 children remanded to the various places of detention throughout Ireland for the year ending 31st December, 1915, viz., 847 boys, and 167 girls.

The number of inmates in Reformatory Schools under orders of detention at the end of the year 1915 was 700 (625 boys and 75 girls), and the number of inmates in Industrial Schools was 8,295 (3,963 boys and 4,332 girls).

There is apparently a great misconception as to the scope of the Children Act, 1908, and as a result of this erroneous interpretation committals are made to schools of children whose cases on close investigation are found not to be eligible for admission to the schools.

The intentions of the Act are thus frequently frustrated. The Children Act was meant to make provision for children whose circumstances and surroundings were such that if they were not removed from evil influences they would be likely to drift into criminal courses; the Act was not intended to relieve destitution for which the poor law is supposed to make provision.

It will perhaps be of advantage to give a recital of the section of the Children Act which has reference to this question.

Children liable to be sent to Industrial Schools.

Section 58 (1) of the Children Act, 1908, states that any person may bring before a petty sessional court any person apparently under the age of fourteen years who—

- (a) is found begging or receiving alms (whether or not there is any pretence of singing, playing, performing, offering anything for sale, or otherwise), or being in any street, premises or place for the purpose of so begging or receiving alms; or
- (b) is found wandering and not having any home or settled place of abode, or visible means of subsistence, or is found wandering and having no parent or guardian, or a parent or guardian who does not exercise proper guardianship; or
- (c) is found destitute, not being an orphan and having both parents or his surviving parent, or in the case of an illegitimate child his mother, undergoing penal servitude or imprisonment; or
- (d) is under the care of a parent or guardian who, by reason of criminal or drunken habits, is unfit to have the care of the child; or
- (e) is the daughter, whether legitimate or illegitimate, of a father who has been convicted of an offence under section four or section five of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885, in respect of any of his daughters, whether legitimate or illegitimate; or
- (f) frequents the company of any reputed thief, or of any common or reputed prostitute; or
- (g) is lodging or residing in a house or the part of a house used by any prostitute for the purposes of prostitution, or is otherwise living in circumstances calculated to cause, encourage, or favour the seduction or prostitution of the child; or
- (h) is found destitute, being an orphan [Section 133 (17)], and the court before which a person is brought as coming within one of those descriptions, if satisfied on inquiry of that fact, and that it is expedient so to deal with him, may order him to be sent to a certified industrial school. Provided that a child shall not be treated as coming within the description contained in paragraph (f) if the only common or reputed prostitute whose company the child frequents is the mother of the child, and she exercises proper guardianship and due care to protect the child from contamination.

REFORMATORIES.

At the end of 1915 there were 5 Reformatory Schools in Ireland :—

2 for Roman Catholic Boys.

2 " " Girls.

1 for Protestant Boys.

On the 31st December, 1915, there were 475 boys in the two Reformatories for Roman Catholic Boys, 73 girls in the two Reformatories for Roman Catholic Girls, and 114 boys in the Reformatory for Protestant Boys.

The following table shows the number of juveniles, male and female, under orders of detention in Reformatory Schools, on 31st December, 1914, and on the 31st December, 1915 :—

	On 31st December, 1914.			On 31st December, 1915.

It appears from the above table that the number of boys actually in the Reformatory Schools was 2 less, and the number of girls 3 more, than at the end of 1914.

ADMISSIONS INTO REFORMATORY SCHOOLS.

The admissions to Reformatory Schools upon conviction in 1915 were 187, viz., 166 boys and 21 girls, showing an increase of 41 boys and 2 girls as compared with 1914. With the exception of one boy, who was convicted on indictment, all were convicted summarily.

In addition to the admissions upon conviction, one boy was admitted on transfer from a Reformatory in Great Britain, and one girl was admitted on transfer from an Industrial School.

The following tabular statement gives the number admitted upon conviction for the year 1915, and for each of the preceding ten years :—

DISCHARGES FROM REFORMATORY SCHOOLS.

The discharges from Reformatory Schools in 1915 were 178, viz., 161 boys and 17 girls, showing an increase of 19 boys and a decrease of 2 girls as compared with 1914.

They were distributed as follows:—

Mode of Discharge.	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
To employment or service	52	10	62
Returned to friends	35	7	42
Sent to sea	9	—	9
Enlisted	55	—	55

Died	5	—	5
Absconded, sentence expired	2	—	2
Discharged, being illegally committed...	1	—	1
Total	161	17	178

Last year 110 boys were discharged on expiry of sentence, 6 were discharged absolutely and 2 conditionally by order of the Chief Secretary, and 38 were discharged before expiry of sentence under section 70 of the Children Act, 1908.

The number of boys licensed in 1915 for the first time was 95, the number relicensed after revocation of a previous licence was 1, and the number of licences revoked before expiry of sentence was 2.

Last year 17 girls were discharged on expiry of sentence. The number of girls licensed for the first time was 2.

The results of Reformatory Schools as regards the number in regular employment, convicted, and unknown at the end of 1915, of those discharged during the years 1912, 1913, and 1914, were as follows:—

The total number discharged during those three years, omitting deaths, transfers, and illegal committals, was 462, viz., boys, 420; girls, 42.

Of the 420 boys 25 had since died, leaving 395 to be reported upon. Of these—

358 or about 90·63 per cent. were reported to be in regular employment.

9 or about 2·27 per cent. were reported to be in casual employment or in no employment.

24 or about 6·07 per cent. were convicted.

4 or about 1·01 per cent. were unknown.

Of the 42 girls one had since died, leaving 41 to be reported upon. Of these—

35 or 85·36 per cent. were reported to be in regular employment.

4 or 9·75 per cent. were reported to be in casual or in no employment.

2 or about 4·88 per cent. were unknown.

The record of both boys and girls in regular employment continues to be satisfactory.

The percentage of boys convicted shows a decrease of 2.18 per cent. as compared with 1914, and of 3.75 per cent. as compared with 1913. It is most gratifying that the decrease under this head is maintained.

HEALTH.

The health of the inmates of the Reformatory Schools has been satisfactory during the past year. Five deaths occurred, three in Glencree Reformatory and two in Philipstown Reformatory. The registered cause of death in each of the five cases was pneumonia, cerebral hemorrhage, abscess of brain, meningitis and canceroma of the intestines. No outbreak of zymotic disease occurred in any of the schools.

From a health point of view, the returns furnished by the medical officers were very satisfactory, there being very few cases of serious illness in any of the schools.

LITERARY TRAINING.

The literary training continues to be very satisfactory. The managers inform me that a larger proportion of the young persons are illiterate on admission now than was formerly the case in these schools. At all the boys' Reformatories lessons are given in Drawing and Manual Instruction. The subjects of the Labour Science Syllabus are taught to the senior boys with satisfactory results.

INDUSTRIAL TRAINING.

The industrial training in the Reformatory Schools continues to progress satisfactorily; the advantages of agricultural training for the boys also continues to be more fully recognized, as the demand each year for practical agricultural labour is making itself more felt.

A large number of the boys in each school are taught carpentry, tailoring, boot and shoe making, harness making and smith work. Employment has not been as easily obtained in some of the trades as in previous years, but, on the whole, the reports received from the managers as to the after employment of the boys have been very satisfactory.

Good and earnest work is being done in the trade shops of the boys' schools.

The occupations taught in the girls' schools fit them principally for taking situations in domestic service. Cookery, needlework, dressmaking, and laundry are the principal occupations taught in the girls' schools. The demand for the girls trained in the schools is every year increasing, and the reports obtained of the girls who are in employment are, I am informed by the managers, as a general rule, very satisfactory.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

There were 66 Industrial Schools in Ireland at the end of 1915.

They were distributed as follows:—

Boys, Roman Catholics, 18; Protestant, 2.

Girls, Roman Catholic, 41; Protestant, 3.

Boys and Girls (mixed), Roman Catholic, 2.

The number of children on the rolls of Industrial Schools on the 31st December, 1914, and on the 31st December, 1915, is shown in the following summary:—

	On 31st December, 1914.			On 31st December, 1915.
	Boys.	Girls.	Total.	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
In School (within number paid for under Rules) ...	3,601	3,892	7,493	3,559	3,816	7,405

Remaining in School—sentence expired ...	10	6	16	4	39	43
Total ...	4,030	4,378	8,408	3,963	4,332	8,295

From the foregoing statement it appears that the number of boys on the rolls of Industrial Schools was 67 less and the number of girls 46 less than at the close of 1914.

The number of boys chargeable to the Treasury Grant was 42 less, and the number of girls 46 less than at the end of the preceding year.

The following Table shows the number of Roman Catholics and Protestants on the rolls of Industrial Schools at the end of 1915:—

ADMISSIONS INTO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

The admissions into Industrial Schools in 1915, omitting transfers and re-committals were—boys, 569; girls, 564; total, 1,133.

The number admitted last year was the lowest since 1900. It was 67 less than the number admitted in 1914. The number of boys showed a decrease of 45, and the number of girls a decrease of 22.

The following Table gives the number of children admitted in the year 1915, and in each of the preceding ten years:—

Of the children who were 8 years of age and over on admission 43 per cent. of the boys and 34·94 per cent. of the girls were illiterate; and 35·62 per cent. of the boys, and 55·39 per cent. of the girls could only read and write imperfectly.

DISCHARGES FROM INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

The total number discharged from Industrial Schools (including children retained after expiry of sentence but excluding transfers to other Industrial Schools) during the year 1915, was 1,254; boys, 640; girls, 614; showing an increase 39 boys and a decrease of 2 girls as compared with the previous year.

They were disposed of as follows:—

Returned to Friends	126	122	248
Emigrated	1	2	3

Last year 558 boys were discharged on expiration of sentence, 40 were discharged absolutely by order of the Chief Secretary, 9 were discharged before expiry of sentence under Section 70 of the Children Act, 1908, and 5 were committed to Reformatory Schools.

The number of boys licensed in 1915 for the first time was 317, the number of licenses after revocation of a previous licence was 9, the number of licenses revoked before the expiry of sentence was 14, and the number after expiry of sentence was 3.

Last year 553 girls were discharged on expiration of sentence, 41 were discharged absolutely by order of the Chief Secretary, and one was transferred to a Reformatory School by order of the Chief Secretary.

The number of girls licensed in 1915 for the first time was 87, the number of licenses revoked before expiry of sentence was 8, and the number after expiry of sentence was 3.

The results of Industrial Schools for the three years 1912, 1913, and 1914, as collected at the end of 1915, were as follows:—

The number placed out in these three years, omitting transfers, committals to Reformatories, and illegal committals, was 3,580, viz., 1,811 boys and 1,769 girls.

Of these 76 had died, viz., 38 boys and 38 girls, leaving 1,773 boys and 1,731 girls to be reported on.

Of the 1,773 boys—

1,589 or about 89.62 per cent. were reported to be in regular employment.

28 or about 1.57 per cent. were reported to be in casual employment or not employed.

20 or about 1.12 per cent. had been convicted.

136 or about 7.67 per cent. were unknown.

B

Of the 1,731 girls—

1,672 or about 96.59 per cent. were reported to be in regular employment.

39 or about 2.25 per cent. were reported to be in casual employment or not employed.

20 or about 1.15 per cent. were unknown.

The record of boys convicted remains low, which is satisfactory, as is also the absence of any convictions against the girls during the period under review.

It would be very advantageous if the managers would endeavour to place boys, who have shown an aptitude for mechanical work, in motor car works. I have, in previous reports, pointed out how useful it would be if this new branch of industrial work were introduced into some of the larger schools.

THE WAR AND THE SCHOOLS.

In my last Annual Report I drew attention to the very creditable record of the schools as regards the number of boys who were serving in His Majesty's Forces. I now desire to submit a further list of particulars which includes the total number of boys who have joined the Army or Navy from the commencement of the War in August, 1914, to June 1st, 1916. This splendid record, as will be seen, was well maintained during the past year.

During the year from July 31st, 1915, to June 1st, 1916, 889 boys joined both branches of the services.

HEALTH.—INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

There was an increase in the rate of mortality in the Industrial Schools during the year 1915. Seventy-two deaths occurred, as compared with sixty-two deaths in the previous year. This was in great part attributable to the number of deaths that occurred from Pulmonary Tuberculosis and other diseases of the Chest and Lungs. Twenty-one deaths were registered from Pulmonary Tuberculosis—four boys and seventeen girls—and sixteen deaths were registered from Chest diseases—five boys and eleven girls.

Diseases of the Heart^{*} were responsible for six deaths—two boys and four girls—and Diseases of the Brain caused seven deaths—three boys and four girls. One death occurred from Scarlatina, and one from Enteric Fever.

The schools, on the whole, were remarkably free from diseases of a zymotic character in the early part of the year. Sixteen cases of Scarlatina occurred in the Balmoral Boys' School; they were all removed for treatment to the Fever Hospital. A few cases also occurred at the Baltimore Fishery School, at Passage West Junior Boys' School, and at the Ennis, Kinsale, and Benada Abbey Girls' Schools. Cases of Measles of a mild type occurred at the Killybegs Boys' School, Cappoquin Junior Boys' School, and Middletown (Armagh) Girls' School.

An outbreak of Enteric Fever occurred in December in St. Joseph's Industrial School, Clonmel; there was no death; no cause was assigned for the outbreak. Several cases of Enteric Fever were reported from Loughrea Girls' School, one case ending fatally.

Outbreaks of Mumps occurred in the Baltimore Fishery School and Milltown (Belfast) Boys' School, and in St. Vincent's (Limerick) and Newtownforbes Girls' Schools.

On the whole, I am glad to say that the health of the children is regarded as a very primary consideration in all the schools and careful attention is given to the important questions of food and clothing. The great majority of the children on admission to the schools are delicate and fragile owing to neglect and previous unhealthy environment. The improvement in physique and appearance of the children after a few months' residence in a school is very noticeable.

Some of the schools take the children for a short period to the seaside during the summer months, and one or two have a period of camping out.

The Meath Boys' School, Blackrock, the Bray Girls' School and the Junior Boys' School, Rathdrum, have hitherto availed themselves of this privilege with excellent results. The change of air and scene is very beneficial to the children's health—it constitutes a break in the year's institutional life, and the children have something of interest to look forward to. Some schools give the children a full day's outing at the seaside on several occasions during the summer months.

I am again glad to be able to record the great improvement noticeable in the condition of the children's teeth. Every school now fully recognises the great benefit of the preservation of the teeth, and arrangements are made in practically all the schools for a periodical dental inspection. The medical officers report generally as to the improvement in the health of the children since the care of the teeth has engaged the attention of the school authorities.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

Each year the importance of Physical Culture is more recognized, and the standard of training is improving. The alert and bright manner and appearance of the boys and girls in the schools in which physical training has its proper place, are very marked, as compared with the institutions where it is neglected. The benefit to be derived from a short daily physical drill and exercises from a health point of view cannot be over estimated—in fact they should be regarded as one of the important features of the daily programme in every school.

It is remarkable that as soon as a boy begins to take an interest in physical drill and gymnastics he begins to exercise self-restraint, and to take a pride in his physical development. The schools (boys' or girls') that give attention to physical drill and exercises, as a rule, can show a clean sheet as far as the doctors' register is concerned.

CONDUCT AND DISCIPLINE.

There has been very little cause for anxiety as regards the general order and discipline of the schools. The management, is, as a rule, both judicious and kind, the result being that the conduct of the inmates of the Reformatory and Industrial Schools has been very satisfactory. Cases occasionally occur of absconding, but they are not numerous, and, as a rule, the absconders are very soon recovered and return to the school.

SANITARY CONDITION OF SCHOOLS.

The sanitary condition of the schools, on the whole continues to be satisfactory. In a few of the schools there is need of improved lavatory accommodation. The improvement, I anticipate, will be carried out in due course and as circumstances permit.

The ventilation of the sleeping apartments and dormitories, speaking generally, is satisfactory, though in some of the schools attention has been drawn to marked defective ventilation in the living or day apartments.

The provision of precautionary measures in the event of fire, and method of fire escape are questions that also require attention in a large number of the schools.

There are still a few schools that continue to use the dry earth closet system. The importance of the substitution of a water-carriage system has been frequently pointed out. The question of expense has been made the excuse for delaying this necessary sanitary improvement.

INDUSTRIAL TRAINING.

The Industrial Training in all the schools is being carried out satisfactorily. In some of the schools, however, the teaching of Agriculture and Gardening might be pushed forward more vigorously. These subjects are much better taught in some schools than in others. There are still some schools that do not thoroughly realize the importance of the teaching of practical Agriculture and gardening for those boys who show an aptitude for these branches of industry.

Boys born and reared up in country districts, who may be likely to return and live in these districts, and who show an inclination to learn agricultural work, should be encouraged and given every facility for acquiring a practical knowledge of this useful branch of industry as the demand for agricultural labour each year increases and is certain to continue to increase.

The principal trades that are taught in the boys' schools are boot and shoemaking, tailoring, carpentry, harness making and smith's work. Bookbinding is taught in a few schools. In two of the schools (Baltimore and Killybegs) netmaking, sailmaking and boat building are taught.

A comparatively new industry—the motor industry—could, with great advantage, be introduced into the industrial departments of some of the larger schools. As a wage-earning industry, it has great possibilities, and a great future before it.

The Industrial Training in the girls' schools continues each year to improve. It is often no easy matter to obtain a really good situation in domestic service for a girl who leaves an Industrial School at the early age of sixteen. The additional year's voluntary instruction in domestic science that has been introduced in a few of the schools has been of great service, as it has been the means of providing a better class of situation in many instances as the girls have had the advantage of an extra year's training and experience and are thus better fitted to undertake the responsibilities and duties of life.

Although domestic service in its various forms is the principal channel for disposals for girls, still it should be possible in these times, as well as in the future, to find other methods of disposal for girls who may not be suitable for domestic service and household work, and who may be fitted for a different class of employment.

In all the girls' schools, cookery, housewifery, laundry work, dressmaking and needlework are the principal industries taught. Dairy work is also taught in a large number of schools, and in some few schools lace work is taught. In some schools bakery work in all its details is carried on by the girls, and is regarded as effecting a considerable saving.

LITERARY TRAINING.

The progress made by the schools during the year under review may, on the whole, be described as very satisfactory. If they were classified as hitherto very few would receive an award inferior to "good," and many would be described as "excellent." Managers and teachers have always shown a willingness to adopt suggestions for the improvement of their schools.

Reading has undergone little change as regards distinctness of articulation or expression. The greater use of explanation in the reading lessons has, no doubt, had some effect in making reading more intelligent. If the child would only realise that the object of reading aloud was to convey a meaning to the hearers the reading would be more agreeable and more easily followed. In most schools two readers are used for each Standard, and sometimes three. In a few only one is used. This is much to be regretted, as having a variety of reading books prevents the reading lessons being known by heart from too frequent repetition.

Recitation of poetical pieces is in most schools very well done. In some it is given much too fast, and the emphasis has more regard to the metre than to the meaning, resulting in a sing-song rendering.

Spelling is, on the whole, well taught. It seems to be best taught by frequent practice in transcription as it is so much a matter of the eye. Careful correction by the teachers of all mistakes in the exercises should be strictly attended to.

Penmanship is carefully looked after in a large number of the schools, and a good style of writing is the rule. In the annual report, a few years ago, attention was drawn to the frequent use of slates in the schools. Although from many schools they have wholly disappeared, yet in some I regret to say they are used, principally in the lower standards. This practice is much to be deprecated, both from the point of view of penmanship, and also for sanitary reasons, and it is to be hoped that they will be replaced by paper in all schools.

Arithmetic is generally satisfactory, particularly in the Junior Standards. The reasons of the processes do not receive sufficient explanation in the Senior Standards. When paying incidental visits to schools, I not uncommonly find classes working test cards. I have in a previous report pointed out that this is a bad and lazy way of teaching Arithmetic. Such cards should only be used occasionally as a test of the children's proficiency.

Geography is, on the whole, well taught, but the proficiency of the pupils in this subject differs very widely at different schools. In some the pupils will point out at once the principal places on the map, while in others they have to hunt all over the map for the place asked for. Globes are provided in most of the schools, but the children do not often have a lesson on them.

Grammar continues to be well taught in most schools. In some schools this subject is only indirectly taught through the correction of compositions. In this connection I should like to say that more frequent exercises in composition and letter writing should be given in most of the schools.

Drawing is taught in all schools, and Manual Instruction in all the senior boys' schools. These subjects are inspected by the Inspectors of the Technical Education Department, and in the large majority of cases they are able to give the award "excellent."

Kindergarten and Object Lessons continue to be well taught. In the former I wish to point out the importance of all the exercises being done without hurry and with extreme accuracy. For example, in paper folding, a few folds made with great accuracy are of much greater educational value than a complete object worked quickly and carelessly.

DAY INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

The question of the establishment of Day Industrial Schools in Dublin and Belfast has not been lost sight of. The same abnormal conditions that prevailed last year still obtain. The establishment of a Day Industrial School is, perhaps in a sense, one of the most effective instruments of social amelioration and improvement in the poorer quarters of a large city. I anticipate that the question which only remains in abeyance for the present will be revived in the near future.

In concluding this Report I desire to take the opportunity of expressing my sincere appreciation of the assistance that I have received from the Inspectors as well as from the Clerical Staff during the past year.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

D. EDGAR FLINN.
